The extent of the benefit from these and other very kindly funded initiatives varies so greatly, not necessarily east to west, that there can good as well as bad, promising and no effect and even if only the former will come at little cost.

It is not unusual for individuals to believe that they have the same or similar form of the disease as other people. Patients often feel embarrassed by their condition, yet the rest of the Thompson family had it too, and it was diagnosed during the course of treatment in 1991 after Mrs. Barbara went to the doctor. As you can see, the disease has affected both the parents and the children before starting treatment. Barbara continues taking the combination therapy of tablets, creams, lotions, and patches. The condition has been improving, but our doctor informed us that there will be more and more treatments. It is believed that the patient's condition continues to deteriorate slowly until the individual reaches the final stage of the disease.
